Coroner Postpones Inquest So Police Can Corroborate Wechincer's Confession.

After an examination of John Wech-Ince, the baker, who gave himself up to the police of the Fifth street station several days ago, telling them he was the murderer of Maggie Gordon, found strangled in her room at No. 15 Second street, Coroner Harburger to-day ordered the police to try and secure more evidence against the man.

In the meantime the woman's husband, Alexanter Gordon, who is in the Tombs and who, until the baker's co ession was the suspect, will be held. The police must get corrobration of AVechinee's story to convict him, for his own confession is not sufficient in a murder case. In order to give the police a chance to get evidence against the baker, the Coroner postponed the inquest into the woman's death this
